

5 tips for choosing

A COLLEGE MAJOR

You can prepare for a successful college experience by aligning your talents, goals and interests with thoughtful consideration of majors and career prospects.

1. Consider your interests.

Identify academic interests and areas of interest, including electives and interests.

Use career assessment tools to help you identify your interests and potential career paths.

2. Consider your abilities.

Evaluate your strengths and weaknesses, including academic, personal, and social skills. Take advantage of resources like career counseling and academic advising to help you understand your abilities.

Consider your academic background, test scores, and other factors that may influence your ability to succeed in a particular major.

3. It's OK to change.

Keep in mind that it's normal to change your mind as you explore different options. Don't feel pressured to make a decision immediately, and don't be afraid to ask for help.

Take advantage of resources like career counseling and academic advising to help you make informed decisions.

4. Talk to a career advisor.

Evaluate your options and consider the pros and cons of each. Meet with a career advisor to discuss your options and get advice on how to choose a major.

Remember, your advisor is there to help you, not to tell you what to do. Use their guidance to help you make your own decision.

5. Your advisor is your best friend.

Remember, your advisor is your best friend. They are there to help you, not to tell you what to do. Use their guidance to help you make your own decision.

Remember, your advisor is your best friend. They are there to help you, not to tell you what to do. Use their guidance to help you make your own decision.

Get more tips at smu.edu/5tips